ALL TOGETHER NOW

WHO: Tanya Linton, director of original content at HGTV, her husband, Mike Sheerin, and sons Eddie, Murray and Frankie

HOW THEY USE IT: As a hub for leisurely Sunday dinners with Tanya's large family. "It's windowless and felt very formal," Tanya says. "But I love it, because you don't see the mess. It's not just where we go to eat; we stay here the whole evening."

HOW IT CAME TOGETHER: Tanya already had the rustic table, Wishbone chairs and mid-century modern sideboard. She refreshed the sideboard with a new Carrara marble top and added cane-backed Thonet chairs to keep to the black and white scheme. The Kenosauk Ashevak fish print was the first piece of art Tanya's husband ever bought and didn't appeal to Tanya at first sight, but she's since grown to love it.

Graphic Eclectic

A flatweave rug stands up to the family's two cats and adds brilliant colour and a Moroccan-inspired pattern. "I've always had a rug under my dining room table," says Tanya. "I feel like it completes the room." Pendant, Snob; rug, EQ3; table top, Hardware; Wishbone chairs, Holoce Clary; Thonet chairs, Design Within Reach; artwork (right) by Alanna Cavanaugh; wall colour, Cloud White (CC-40), Benjamin Moore.

LEFT: Rose-tinted glassware and resin bowls set a refined tone, while sterling silver flatware adds a special touch to family dinners. Glassware, pink vase, white, pink and black resin bowls, salt bowl, Pimlico Design Gallery; cutting board, Etc.
